Since the nomination of Edward Chamber Since the nomination of Edward Chamber-lain by the Republican Convention as can-date for the office of Inspector of Weights and Measures serious allegations have been made against his character. One story was gener-ally told, involving Chamberiain in a case of areon. It was stated that he had set fire to a house in the year 1885 and other incidents in Convection with the case were tald. house in the year 1885 and other incidents in connection with the case were told. The allegation was made by Henry Gaussman, who served as a delegate to the convention from Ward Eleven, that Chamberiain was the same man who had been examined in the Court of Criminal Correction charged with arson in the first degree. An examined in the court, charged as above. The story was that he had set fire to a boarding-house in which he was living at 488 North Nineteenth street. This was alleged to have occurred on January 26, 1885, and he had his hearing on February 10 following. The witnesses were Officers Suillivan and McCarthy of the Fourth District. There was absolutely no evidence on which to sustain the charge. Not a jost of testimony was produced against Chamberiain and he was acquitted.

Another story, not to the credit of the candidate, was told extensively. It was to the effect that Chamberlain owes a generous board bill to Mrs. Brady of 1413 Olive street. That is adjusted that Chamberlain has owed her a balance of $40 on a board bill for about a year. She sued him for it and got judgment. He appealed the case, which is now pending.

Capt. Joyce of the Central District has made convention if Their Contests Are Decided Against Them—In the Wards.

P. SLATTERY created a commotion on 'Change this morning by the announcement that he would run for Mayor on an independent ticket. Stuffed Ballot Boxes.

Deputy Sheriff and Republican Central Committeeman John J. Kirby of the Nineteenth Ward is losing the respect of his political admirers. In the Committee on Credentials, when they reached the Nineteenth Ward. Capt. Masterson charged ballot-stuffing, and demanded that the boxes be sent for. Long before this Pohlman discovered that some mistakes had been made and some of the Pohlman delegations had named committeemen for credentials who were very much inclined to give him the worst of it. When Capt. Masterson demanded that the boxes be sent for, Kirby was asked if they were all right, and the debate was continued. If the box wasn't all O. K., Kirby would have been given an opportunity to "fix" it before it arrived at the Committee foom. Kirby confidently consented that the box be sent for. When it arrived the tickets were found in it uncrumpled. They had been slammed in without taking the trouble of folding them. The evidence was convincing. There was no escaping from the conclusion that the box had been stuffed. This made it an ugly task for Mr. Schweickhardt and the majority of the committee who reported, not withstanding these disclosures, in favor of seating the Kirby delegation. Their recommendation was rejected by the convention.

Back From Washington. Mr. Frank L. Ridgely, whose name has been prominently mentioned for Postmaster, has returned from the East. During his trip he visited Washington, and though not on any political mission met representatives of the Administration. While there he called on Gen. Noble and met Senator Cullom, a relative by marriage, who, referring to the public use of Mr. Ridgely's name, said he would be pleased to urge his appointment should he make application. In company with Mr. R. C. Kerens, who is in Washington working in behalf of a friend, Mr. Ridgely visited the departments and called on Mr. Biaine, also on Secretary Windom, to whom Mr. Kerens has recommended Col. J. O. Churchill for Surveyor (who has every prospect of success), and also on Attorney General Miller. Mr. Ridgely says the Republican victory of last fall is still the subject of comment at the capital and that the importance of the three St. Louis Congressmen and their advice in filling the important offices if fully appreciated. Mr. Ridgley's name has been very generally used in the discussion of Fostmaster Hyde's probable successor, but he has not yet made any application for the appointment. risited Washington, and though not on any

Last night the Allen men in the Democratic Central Committee tricked the Noonan commixteemen by absenting themselves from the meeting which was to pass upon Noonan's application to be allowed to name a clerk for the primaries. The primary law provides that the judges shall select the clerk, but the Noonan men proposed that the selection be given to the candidates. Instead of meeting last night and making objection the Allen men remained away and the Noonan men could do nothing for want of a quorum. Chairman Carlisle was present, but a messenger arrived and delivered a whispered announcement, after which Carlisle said that there was not a quorum and he could not wait any longer. The meeting had been called for 8 p. m. at Justice Spaulding's office, 1108 Olive street, but the offices were locked up and the Noonan men repaired to the headquarters of the Hendricks Association, but they could not get a quorum, and in great disgust adjourned with threats that if they did not receive a fair deal they would boit.

His indignation against the re rter, who he thought had wilfully maligned him, knew no bounds, and he was seeking an opportunity to vent it when the sight of the offending individual in front of Attorney D. . Ramsay's office, on Main street, about 10 'clock yesterday morning, gave him the chance he desired. He accessed the reporter and at once began loud and violent abuse. His language was such as to attract those who happened to be in the immediate vicinity. Among those who went to investigate the cause of the trouble was Mr. Garrett of the Post-Disparch. Mr. Garrett had been standing but a short distance away taiking with Mr. Ramsay, who was furnishing him information for an item. As he approached Gray he started to make a note of what Mr. Ramsay had told brim. Gray, supposing without any reason whatever that Mr. Garrett was putting someting down about him, turned on him in a violent passion, began to abuse and viility him in the coarsest manner and then made an attempt to strike him. His hoodium like intentions failed, however, Mr. Garrett warding off his first few blows and Mr. Ramsay interfering to prevent the continuance of the shameful assault. owed them by Edward L. Bremond, the proprietor, for printing furnished him two years ago when he was managing Louise Sylvester. Another attachment was levied for O. H. Hasselman for $34 worth of printing furnished this company. John M. Hickey attached the three ponies to collect a balance of $62 on a due bill for $162, and several of the members of the company attached the ponies, subjects to Hickey's attachment, for salary.

The manager, Merline, with the star, Harry Bell, left for the East. The remainder of the company is here, waiting for money to take them to New York. Those who are still here are Charles Foreman, Miss Hortense Hofner, Lou Lang, Jas. Dixon, Jos. Murphy, Harry Lynton and Harry Vernander. Mr. Murphy was seen at the Merchants' Hotel to day, where the fragments of the company are stopping. He said: "We were doing pretty good business and had no cause to complain. We would have had no trouble if Merline had stood off the second attachment against him by giving bond on it, then we could have gone through to Pittsburg, where we were to disband. Of course when they took everything we put in our claims for salary. None of us are out much, but we are as badly off as if y were out more, as we have no money to gout of town with."

Soon after he retired he again heard the waiking, when suddenly a hand seized him and jerked him out of the bed. He could see no one, and, trembling with fear, he hastily left the building and nothing could ever indue him to return.

About ten years ago Mr. W. S. Shirley, an attorney, living at Spring Ctty, had been in the upper room of the Court-house during the day and had left a book there. After supper he went after the book, coming back on a run and never stopping until he had left the Court-house far behind him. When questioned, he said that as he stooped for the book the form of a man leaned over him with lighted blue candles about its head. He didn't remain to cultivate an acquaintance with the gentleman. One night, a few years ago, T. J. Howard, now Chief of Police at Chattanoogs, was sitting in the court-room with a friend. They had built a fire in the stove which ignited a piece of cloth that had in some way come in contact with the stovepipe on the second ting in the court-room with a friend. They had built a fire in the stove which ignited a plece of cloth that had in some way come in contact with the stovepipe on the second floor. Howard went upstairs, taking some matches to light his way, and succeeded in putting out the fire. Not knowing where the stovepipe went, he climbed into the cupola to satisfy himself that the fire was out. As he descended the ladder leading from the cupola, his matches became exhausted and he had to grope his way in the dark. When he reached the bottom of the ladder a voice said: "Is the fire all out?" Howard supposed it was his friend whom he had left downstairs, and answered without fear or surprise: "I think it is." He felt a sudden chill pass over him, because he could neither see any one nor hear footsteps, although the voice was directly in front of him.

When he reached the lower room he said to his friend, who was sitting by the fire where he had left him.

"How did you get down bere?"

"Why, said the friend, "I haven't moved from this chair since you left."

Chief Howard says he wouldn't have gone up-stairs again for any price, although he is far from superstitious.

The man, or apparition, whichever it is, has been seen through the window a few times, but he is not visible, although he can be heard walking the floor almost every night. The character and standing of the witnesses gives the Court-house widespread notoricty as being haunted. There are three theories extant. One that it is the spirit of the murdered man, Peter son, haunting the place; another that Jimmy Lonesome is responsible for the disturbances; and a third that the room has been occupied all these years by a man who for some reason has exiled himself from the world and has constructed a hole or place of some kind where he can disappear when the room is searched. The mystery would probably be impossible to utilize it as a poor-house, as is now latended.

A Ghost in a Hollow Tree.

A Ghost in a Hollow Tree. Indianapolis, March 20. - Nowhere on Hoosier soil has nature nourished such glant trees as in the Pogue's Run Bottoms. On East Michigan avenue, beyond the creek, is one monarch whose branches have a diameter of over a hundred feet, and close to this one is the stump of a burnt-out sycamore, still showing signs of life, in which a family could comfortably live. The interior of the hollow tree is eight feet across in the clear.

But one tree belonging to this group is better known than all the rest. It is sometimes called "hangman's Elm," sometimes the "gallows tree" and occasionally the boys of the neighborhood speak of it as "the home of the ghost." During the war, one day when there was bloody news from the front, and when human life was cheap the body of an unknown man was found hanging from this particular tree. Soldiers who climbed the tree to cut down the body found a curiously concealed opening into the tree. It was instantly concluded that the hollow interior of the elm should be the place of sepulchure. The body was lowered into the hollow tree, but apparently it struck no bottom. Certainly it gave forth no sound in falling.

It may have been that the dust and accumulation of rotted particles of the tree's heart had made a soft, deep bed within so that no sound of the falling body came forth. Or, was it possible that the spreading roots of the elm walled in a deep "cave of the winds" or well? At any rate, nothing was heard when the body tumbled to its uncertain grave.

The spot where the supposed burial tree stands long ago became part of the city. The site is beautiful. Lots have been sold and houses built all about it. A stranger bought the lot on which the tree stands. But he will never build there. One of the neighbors asys:

ington, a suburb of this place, has applied to Burgess Pipin to have the police investigate a mysterious affair that takes place at her residence aimost nightly. Some weeks ago her husband died, and she claims that not long after his death she began to hear ghostly sounds in the house, and within the last few days she has had several visits from an apparition clothed in a white shroud and wearing a beautiful rose on its bosom. The apparition bears a striking resemblance to her husband. It utters not a word, and after gazing mournfully upon her for a short time, disappears as mysteriously as it came. Boits or bars prove no obstacle to its appearance, and the woman is almost scared to death, Others have seen the queer visitor and heard the ghostly noises. The Burgess will investigate the matter personally.

A Very Peculiar Ghost.

From the Indianapolis News.

COLUMBUS, February 26.—The people reiding in the neighborhood of Brushy Ridge, siding in the neighborhood of Brushy Ridge, this county, are greatly exercised over the reappearance there of what they claim to be a genuine ghost. It is said to be as large as a red fox and has four legs and a pair of wings. The strange and oddly-shaped "spook" can both walk and thy, and make hideous cries at all times of night. The people of that locality are so terrorized by the unnatural being that they cannot be induced to venture from their homes at night.

Grove Cemetery. by rail to the cemetery station of Winton Place, where the undertaker's hearse and carriages met the train. At Spring Grove Cemetery a very large assemblage of friends and acquaintances of the distinguished dead had gathered. The burial service of the Protestant Episcopal Church was used, the rector being the Rev. Dr. Pise of Glendaie. The day was delightfully clear and balmy and the assemblage at the grave was one of more than ordinary interest. Besides the members of the family and the Justices of the Supreme Court and others from Washington, there were present Gov. Foraker, Lieut. Gov. Lyons, members of the Ohio Senate, a committee of the House of Representatives, Henry Waterson from Louisville, Murat Halstead, expressident Hayes, and committee of the Ohio Commandery of the Loyal Legion. The latter placed on the grave the usual emblem of a white pillow of flowers with the words "Loyal Legion" in purple. Flowers from the President and Mrs. Harrison and from the District of Columbia Commandery were also left on the grave. The family went to Glendale after the ceremony and the others came to the city and will return to Washington to night. by rail to the cemetery station of next month.

Surgical Operation Prevented-How a Father and Son Were

The following narrative of the suffering of a father and son wift prove interesting to the readers of this paper. G. C. Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. They frankly confessed that there was no help for me. As a last resort I commenced the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y., you know. The result is a little short of a miracle. All the terrible symptons of disease of the kidneys are gone. Who would begrudge the cost of one dollar for such a blessing, or refuse this token of gratitude for being perfectly cured? But my recovery was not more remarkable than that of my you, who, when a boy, fell from a fence, bruising bis son, who, when a boy, fell from a fence, bruising his leg, which was followed by disease of the bone. The indications for twenty-four hours, commencing at 3 p. m. to-day, for Missouri are: Fair weather; slightly warmer; cooler, variable winds.

THERE are some very weak spots in the Republican city ticket, and, if rumor is true, some rotten spots. Let us hope the Democratic Convention will avoid these mistakes.

"BID Me Good-bye and Go." is the song of the post-office to the Democratic postmaster. The hand-organ accompaniment is played by First Assistant Postmaster-General CLARKSON.

THERE should be a big gathering of patriotic citizens at the Washington centennial meeting Thursday afternoon. The biggest future event in St. Louis will be the celebration of April 30.

THE Democratic party will address the people of St. Louis through the primaries to-day. Will the declaration be in favor of bossism or against it? On this question hang the hopes of the party.

THE Republican Council ticket is not strong and its list of ward candidates for the House of Delegates is appalling. There is a gloomy outlook for municipal legislation in the next two years.

"OFFENSIVE partisanship" is not a good reason in Postmaster-General WANA-MAKER'S opinion for the removal of a Postmaster, so Mr. CLARKSON bounces the Democrats for permicious activity in poli-

WHAT action will the Democratic City Convention take with regard to officials holding positions on the Central Committee? This is one of the burning questions of the day which will have to be answered one way or the other to-morrow.

New York was nearer the center of the United States in 1789 than it is now. The center has moved towards St. Lonis since then and here will be the grandest celepration of the Centennial of Washing-TON's inauguration in the Mississippi

SENATOR VOORHEES says that he can character to cover everything except his politics. This is the best recommendation he could give him to Secretary BLAINE. Perhaps Dudley might get an appointment under a similar certificate.

COL KERENS' remark that Presiden HARRISON has a warm side for Missourians will sprinkle a little refreshing dew on parching hopes, but what the Missourians really want to know is whether the President has warm places for them. How about the snug official nests, Colonel?

THE surplus in the Federal Treasury is increasing steadily, but Corporal TANNER, the new Commissioner of Pensions, has remarked that no old soldier nor old soldier's widow, father or mother should be in want. With the door of the pension department wide open there is no need for an extension of the surplus storage

It is given out now that the Postmaster-General will not make removals merely for offensive partisanship, but as we understand it the Big Four in Missouri take a different view of the situation. Where postmasters are offensive partisant they want them removed for being offensive partisans. Where they are not offensive partisans they want them removed for not being offensive partisans.

PUBLIC centiment prevented the perpetration of a political outrage in the Republican Convention when it overthrew and of the machine bosses and succeeded in nominating a fairly acceptable municipal ticket. The same public sentiment has an opportunity of making itself felt in the Democratio Convention to-morrow.

This is the last week of the Post-Dis-PATCH Parnell Defense Fund and its Congressman, before he had any official friends should rally enthusiastically to connection with the departments, he work of making the sum total as made a reputation as a spoils grabber and advertising in Post-Disparch. A STATE CELEBRATION.

The celebration in this city of the centennial of Washington's inauguration has taken such shape that the fitting oulminacommemoration of that important historic event in which the whole State will

That the State as a State should recog nize the date of the beginning of our constitutional government in some appropri take part in the celebration at New York representatives were appointed for Missouri and a resolution was introduced defray the expenses of a military display. The resolution was defeated for political reasons, but the sentiment was so strong in favor of some observance of the day London Office, 32 Cockspur Street, Charing Cross. that it was proposed to have the resolution reconsidered.

> Circumstances have changed. At the suggestion of the Post-Disparch an enthusiastic movement has been started to have a celebration here in St. Louis. It the Merchants' Exchange have joined selves will not be likely to make a second call in calling a meeting of citizens for Thursday afternoon to inaugurate the practical work of arrangement. St. Louis has never yet made a failure of similar events in the past and this will be > no exception to the rule. While the entire State will be invited to join in this celebration there should be a formal participation in it by the State authorities. This is the only Missouri city in which there will be a celebration of said to me once in a spirit of distress grand proportions. It is the chief city of the State and has abundant conveniences and hotel accommodations for a celebra tion on the largest scale. Every militia company, every patriotic organization every city and town in the State should be represented here on April 30.

The objections which would apply to the appropriation of money for a State display in New York do not apply here. The expenses of providing a military display for New York would cut down the display to the smallest proportions. In St. Louis, the same amount of money would pro vide a handsome, distinctive State dis play. The Governor and his staff, the Adjutant-General and his staff, the militia, the State officials and legislators should take part in it. The Governor has favored the recognibe heartily in favor of a celebration in his action and an appropriation by the Legislature for the representation of the State in St. Louis. The result will be worthy of Missouri and her chief city.

MATTHEWS' SUCCESSOR.

The death of Justice Matthews makes one vacancy on the Supreme Bench, and Justices BRADLEY, MILLER and FIELD are all over 70 years of age and entitled to retire on full pay for life. Justice BLATCHFORD is 69 and will be entitled to retire on full pay in 1892. So President HARRISON will probably have the appointment of a majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court, even if no more of them die.

He can, therefore, appoint some other man to succeed MATTHEWS and still dangle a seat on the Supreme Bench before Judge GRESHAM's eyes until after the election in 1892. If he had a sure thing on but one Supreme Court vacancy, give John C. New a certificate of good it would be a good stroke of policy to give that one to Judge GRESHAM and thus shelve a man whom circumstances may make a very formidable anti-administration candidate for the Republican nomination in 1892. But as the matter stands, he retains that shelving power to the last needed moment, and can probably have BRADLEY'S OF MILLER'S place for GRESHAM whenever he wants it.

In the meantime all the great corporation influences that nominated HARRISON are rabidly opposed to GRESHAM, and QUAY's boodlers will never consent to the promotion of the judge who described them so aptly when he said of DUDLEY's blocks-of-five, "It is the Pharisees who have done this." It is far more likely that the successor of MATTHEWS will be the judge whose revised instruction to the United States Grand-jury at Indianapolis prevented the indictment of DUDLEY.

THAT is a pretty scheme outlined by Senator PLATT to get himself a place in the Cabinet. Attorney-General MILLER is to be appointed to the supreme bench, Secretary of the Navy TRACEY, is to be made Attorney-General, and Senator PLATT is to drop gently into the Navy Department. Senator FASSETT is said to be in Washington using honeyed words to get the President to see the advantages of it. But how much does the Empire State want of the Administration? New York now has one member of the Cabinet, the French Mission and is said to be sure of the combination of the deputy sheriffs the English Mission in addition to a lot of Harrison's Chilly Manners.

Washington Special to the Philadelphia Times.

The complaints of President Harrison's chilly receptions to applicants and their ate manner is admitted by all citizens. they are open and general. The President When the entire country was invited to seems to assume that applicants and their friends are all to be dealt with at arm's length, and he applies the same rule regardless of their distinction. I could name several very prominent Philadelphia business in the Legislature appropriating $15,000 to men who were ardent supporters of Harrison and liberal contributors, and who would accept nothing for themselves, as illustrations of this want of cordiality or even respect exhibited by the President to those who seek to advise about appointments. If this want of cordiality was confined to importunate applicants it might be excused; but he is equally chilly to all. The dramatist in the play has set himself The dramatist in the play has set bimself the task of analyzing and reproducing the intense sufferings and the most powerful emotions of which womankind is capable. On the other hand, he reproduces the extreme of unscrupulousness, wanton crucity and base passions of which man is capable. All the interest is centered in La Tosca, the Roman singer, and Scarpia, the Roman Chief of Police. Scarpia is the inquisitor with love and passion for his instruments, and La Tosca is his victim. La Tosca loves the artist Mario devotedly and passionately. She is a woman of that time, intense in her emotions, unconventional, impulsive, charming, capastranger in the City.—We publish the addresses of the tailors you ask for in the advertising columns only.

patch received here from Coroner Sutton at tramp found dead on George Dell's farm, Mt. The artist Mario shelters Angelotti, a rebel whom Scarpla must arrest. Unable to find him he plays on the jealousy of Tosca, who reveals in her blind fury Mario's secluded villa. Tosca is thus made the betrayer of her own lover and in the midst of their reconciliation scarpla and his agents appear. In order to discover the hiding place of Angelotti Scarpla hits upon the flendish expedient of torturing Mario in the hearing of Tosca to extort a confession from her. He describes to her the steel points entering the head of her lover and his groans lacerate her heart. Imagination cannot picture a more ingenious combination of soul and body anguish. After a period of supreme and pitiable agony, she confesses to save Mario, and accomplishes only the death of his friend and his own condemnation to the gallows. The curtain fails on the bleeding, staggering figure Pleasant, as the famous "Old Leatherman" who for a quarter of a century has been who for a quarter of a century has been a character in Connecticut. It is probable that his true history will never be known, for the queer old fellow could never be induced to speak a full sentence either in English or in the language of France, of which he was a native. The story generally accepted, although its origin is unknown, is that his name was Jules Bourglay and that he was a native of Lyons. In early manhood he fell in love with the daughter of M. Laron, a leather manufacturer, but her father objected, as Bourglay was without means. Finally M. Laron took him into his employ as a confidential elerk, this being about 1867. Business depression led to speculations by Bourglay with M. Laron's funds until he had ruined his employer. Bourglay became insane and after confinement in a private asylum fied to America. He first came into public notice in Litchfield County, where he tramped around doing little jobs at tinkering on the pott and kettles of the farmers' wives. He wore a suit of clothing made wholly of pieces of boot legs stitched together with thongs, as a leather belt is laced. His leather cap had a visor and was of a military design. His boots were discarded ones, picked up or given him, and he talways added heavy wooden soles. Over each shoulder was slung a leather bag, one containing scraps of food and the other pieces of leather. Early in the history of his ceaseless tramping he established a regular circuit, beginning in Litchfield County, thence eastward to the Connecticut River (which he never crossed), then down the river valley and westward through New Haven County to Fairfield County, and thence northward to the starting point. His trip occupied four weeks and in fair weather was so regular that people ton the route knew to a day and almost to the hour when to expect him. For many years until this time he had not crossed into New York, but had frequently years ago. He never begged, but always took whatever food or tobacco was offered him. Every attempt to draw him into conversation wholly character in Connecticut. It is probable that his true history will never be known, for the anguish. After a period of supreme and pit-lable agony, she confesses to save Mario, and accomplishes only the death of his friend and his own condemnation to the gallows. The curtain falls on the bleeding, staggering figure of Mario and the crushed, prostrate form of Tosca. Cruelty, however, is not yet satiated. The next scene is in Scarpia's castle. Mario is to die at sunrise. Tosca is brought in pale and heartbroken. Scarpia, despute her hate and glorying in her agony, makes a base prop-osition to save her lover. With infinite horror and disgust she consents. An order is apcostion to save her lover. With infinite horror and disgust she consents. An order is apparently given for the false execution of Mario with blank charges in the guns. A passport is written for the safe conduct of the lovers. As Scarpia comes to claim his reward Tosca in a moment of frenzy plunges a knife into him, and the final tableau presents a trembling, horror-stricken woman with averted face placing candles and a crucifix at the head of the corpse.

In the last act Tosca tells Mario of his supposed release, bids him good-bye and walts fearingly for the discharge of the guns. Then she runs to the fallen Mario and pathetically begs him to rise and follow her. The figure is still. She calls, begs, implores. The truth flashes on her. He is dead. The order was a fraud. Scarpia's crucity is victorious after death. With a shricking ery of triumph that she has killed Scarpia and a denunciation of his agents she rushes to throw herself over the parapet and is shot down by the soldlery. She crawls to Mario's body, lays her head on his breast and dies.

These are the elements of 'La Tosca.' They are of the strongest, and they are treated with masterful skill to secure the most stirring effect. The single gleams of light are the devotion of Mario to his friend and the devotion of Tosca to Mario. Her devotion, however, is of the passionate kind which could be turned into cruel hate by jealousy and would sacrifice honor, all that is dearest, to possess him. The play is superb in its ingenuity and its fidelity to nature and realistic art.

Miss Davenport scored a genuine triumph as La Tosca. She lilumined the opening scenes with coquettish vivacity and and bright unconventional love passages, and in the tragic portions of the play she delineated fiaming jealousy, pitable anguish, horror, hate, disgust, and finally pathetic grief and despair with graphic power.

Mr. Melbourne MacDowell had a difficult task in the role of Scarpia. He treated it with intelligence, force and delicacy. The most potent effect to the situation and disgust she consents. An order is ap-parently given for the false execution of Mario with blank charges in the guns. A

WHAT THE BARK VASCO DAGMA SIGHTED AT SEA.

Surken Steam Launch and a Corpse With a Life Buoy-The Conserva Believed to be That the Propellor Nanticoke Was the Ill-Fated Vessel.

New York, March 26,-A sunken steam were sighted on Sunday by the Portuguese bark Vasco Dagama within forty miles of the spot where the Mallory Line steamer Colorado, on the day bafore, picked up the bodies of two men on a life raft. Capt. Gaelilo, of the Vaseo Dagams, which sailed from Maranham forty-five days ago, arrived in the Atlantic basin, Brooklyn, yesterday, says that there was nothing on the launch to indicate its name or that of the vessel to which she was attached. The story of the find of the Colorado and the statement that some shipping men believed that the lost ship was the Conserva, late of Madrid, the Haytian gunboat that left this port for Samana last Tuesday to engage in tha civil war down there in the interest of Gen. Hippolyte, caused some consternation in the office of Kuhnhart & Co., the est of Gen. Hippolyte, caused some conster-nation in the office of Kuhnhart & Co., the been painted for several months. This description does not seem to apply to the Conserva's rafts, which were painted just before she left port. One fact is interesting, however, and that is the Haytien gunboat carried such a steam lauch as was seen by the Vasco Dagama. Before the Conserva left port there was a rumor that she was to be destroyed by a dynamite bomb, with clock work attachment to be smuggled aboard by some enemy of Gen. Hippolyte. This gave rise to many lurid rumors yesterday, and in the eyes of many Gen. Contreras, who is not now in New York, appeared as a patriot. They thought that he had caused the Conserva to be blown up. Everything that can at this moment be said about the lost steamer must be speculative. If guesses count for anything a very good one must be that the wrecked steamer was the Britisher Yedmandale, of about 3,000 tons burden, that was sighted in distress twenty-four hours before the corpses were ploked up, about 133 miles away. The Yedmandale, Capt. Shearer, left New Orleans for Eouen, via Newport News, week before last. She left Hampton roads on Saturday, March 16. On Tuesday, March 19, she was spoken by the British brig G. B. week before last. She left Hampton roads on Saturday, March 16. On Tuesday, March 19, she was spoken by the British brig G. B. Lockhart from San Domingo City in latitude $6.45, longitude 73.02. The Yedmandale had a heavy list to starboard and her decks were nearly to the water's edge. She signalled the Lockhart—'machinery disabled; sails blown away. Report me by telegraph to Lloyds.'' ANOTHER STEAMER SIGHTED.

The steamer Flambourough sighted a steamer in distress last Friday in 36 degrees north, 71 degrees 50 miles west, the description of which corresponds with that of the Yedmandale. Another steamer was standing by her, giving assistance. If that down to the gunwales. The supposition is that the Nanticoke encountered the equinoctial gales and, being dangerously loaded, could make no headway and put put back for Chesapeake Bay. In this attempt she probably foundered. It is no longer believed that the Conserva was the unfortunate vessel. The Nanticoke recently had built on the deck a saloon seventy-five feet long, with staterooms. This saloon, it is said, proved a source of danger, rendering the vessel top heavy. The saloon was painted white and had extension boards, panels and a large number of loose chairs, all painted white and had extension boards, panels and a large number of loose chairs, all painted white. This would correspond with the description of the wreckage seen drifting off the coast. She had a crew of thirteen or fourtoen men. The Couserva, on the other hand, was a splendidly equipped vessel and had not on board within 400 tons of her usual cargo. She is double steel-plated and especially fitted to withstand such gales as were reported last week. There are no loose fittings about her, such as were seen adrift, and her chairs, saloon panels, etc., are colored, not white. She had no loose sofas on board and her raft bore her name.

A BATH BOY'S ROMANTIC CAREER. Richard W. Jackson, Sailor, Cannibal King

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch.

BATH, Me., March 26.—By the death of Rich. ard W. Jackson, sailor boy, king of a cannibal tribe and arctic explorer, the most romantic pareer ever lived by a Maine man has just come to a singularly undappy end. Jackson was born in Bath and during his early boyhood was noted for his daring in athletic sports and the many narrow escapes he had.

his mature years saved people from drowning. Once in his teens he fell from a hay mow and agents of the vessel. The Maritime Exchange people were inclined to believe that it must have been the Conserva that was wrecked, when they received a telegram from Boston reporting a clew discovered by the steamer Gate City at that port from Savannah. Her Captain stated that at 11:30 in latitude 83.11 longitude 76.30 (this longitude must be wrong, for the point indicated would be on land), she passed a metallic life boat and one lapstreak boat, the latter newly painted white. The first three letters of the name of the large boat looked like "Con." The Gate City also passed a sofa and other wreckages. A third boat further away was not examined. It was plain that all three were quite empty. There was a large quantity of wreckage about.

SLENDER CLEWS.

Henry J. Kuhnhart, Jr., declares that there were no such articles as these on the Conserva. She had no metallic lifeboat, he is sure. Early in the day he sent for O. L. Petersen of 120 Broad street, who painted the name of the largest of the largest steamers affoat, and was steadily mounting up when he was knocked down by a runaway horse, while assore on avacation, and killed. He was only 30 years old.

It directs that agents of vessel carrying passengers from foreign ports is alien passengers, excepting those designatified class, at Castle Garden. The resolution met with no opposition and were passing unanimously. They will go into effect mediately. The dispute between the Collector and the commissioners concerning the landing of the two Italian women still remains unsettled commissioner Tainter informed the board yesterday that the Collector would not by amenable to their mandamus. Legal proceedings against him were therefore abandoned. morth, a quarter north. If the Yedmandale had gone or had been towed 13s miles she would have reached the exact spot at which the bodies were found.

A theory built from this is that the Yedmandale was taken in tow, but was lost during the storm of Friday night and subsequently wrecked, being at the mercy of the winds and sea. If that is so, where is the steamer that stood by her? The fittings seen affoat are such as might belong to the Yedmandale. The latter was built at South Shields, England, in 1884.

Some doubt was expressed as to the safety of the wooden propeller Nanticoke, 250 tons, which left Baitimore last Friday for Arnatan, Guatamaia. She had sofas and joinery work, such as seen adrift and it is believed she carried a steam launch. She had recently been sold to a syndicate, which put 460 tons of coal aboard her—more than was thought safe. Some folks thought she was not seaworthy.

The steamer Athos, from Costa Rica, sighted the Yedmandale and so did the City of Para. The City of Alexdra from Havana, signted on Friday afternoon the poot deck of a vessel, just a wash, water combings of a skylight painted white, companion ways and a hatch. Thos. French told a pretty straight sort of a story when he was arraigned this morning on the charge of trespass, but he was so unfortunate as to be found in an out-house of the building at 1158 Fifteenth street, and police investigation showed that a large quantity of lead pipe had been cut from the building. Putting the two together Judge Cady decided to fine French $50, and he was committed in default of payment.

Julia E. Oliver and Robert L. Oliver were married in 1885 and lived together until 1888. Mrs. Oliver gave as the reason why she wished to be divorced that her husband was addicted to drunkenness and was too fond of other women, particularly one known as Kittle, of whom he spoke very often, telling her repeatedly that "he loved his Kittle."

Lulu M. King was granted a divorce on her cross bill from George L. King. Her husband filed a petition for divorce on the ground that his wife had been unfaithful to him, but in her cross bill she alleged that the charge was false; that her husband had falsely accused her of infidelity and had made the charge to others besides herself; that he was addicted to drunkenness and refused to support her. She testified to the facts as they were alleged in the cross bill and King did not appear, so the divorce was granted.

Louisa B. Pflaester was granted a divorce from Henry Pflaester on the ground that her husband was a drunkard; that he abused her and falled to support her. Mrs. Pflaester testified that frequently her husband came home at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning and made her get out of bed at such hours and cook meals for him.

KING LINIMENT CO.,

2 N. 4th st., St. Louis.

GENTS—It affords me much pleasure to give the following testimony on the merits of King Liniment. About four years ago I contracted a disease which made its appearance on my right shoulder in the form of ulcees. I was treated by prominent physicians of St. Paul, Minn., and St. Louis, but without referring much if any benefit. My family physician told me my only help was along stay at Hot Springs. One day I saw a King Liniment, Fucular and purchased a bottle and after the use of two bottles the ulcers healed up leaving a perfect skin as any on my body. Five weeks ago I made the last application and have had no occasion to use any only shoulder since. I also used the Liniment four days for catarrh and was completely cured. I applied the Liniment for several days and the corns coured two of the worst corns I ever saw. I applied the Liniment for several days and the corns control of the corns are off leaving the toes perfectly smooth. The large toe joints of both my feet have always been tender and troubled me a great deal if I splied for a time or walked much. I applied a time or walked much. I applied a time or walked much. I now stand all day at my desk without knowing I have a large joint. If the above will be of any use to you you are at liberty to use it to convince others of its great merits.

JOHN BRIGHT SUFFERS ANOTHER RELAPSE AND IS VERY WEAK.

Friendship for Bright-A Financial Parie, at Le Mans, France-Death of Theodore Steinway in Germany-The Austro-Hungarian Army Bill-Foreign special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 26.—John Bright is sinking. His illness has been long and tedions, but he faculties throughout and never lost his in-terest in public affairs. He has had all the He has been moved on days when he felt le has been moved on days when he felt better to his study, a room which tells the better to his study, the man character of the man.

Its most striking feature is a bookcase, "Presented by Friends of Free Trade to John Bright, 1847." Among the pottraits on John Bright, 1981. Almong the portraits on the wall are Gladstone, in his wood-cutting costume, also Lincoln and Washington. There is a bust of Gladstone also. In spite of their strong political differences, Bright keeps his respect for his old friend, in pleasant contrast to the Duke of Westminster who sold his Millais portrait of Gladstone when the Home Rule split came. A touching cident of his illness has been the devotion of his pet dog, called Fly, a Skye terrier, who lies night and day by her master's sickbed. funeral of his eldest brother while his oldest olitical friend lies dying.

of the firm of Steinway & Sons, plano makers, ate last night, bringing in Hong Kong news to February 28 and Yokohoma advices to March II. In Shantling the anti-foreign excitement runs high. February 23, at Cheefoo, the Europeans feared an attack from mutinous troops. It was reported that the Chinese troops were meeting at the fort and that the mutineers proposed marching against the custom-house and other places. As no man-of-war was there intense excitement prevailed. No attack was made, however. A missionary from Chi Hai Yu states that the Chinese in that city have posted placards outside various foreign residences notifying the tenants that they intend to massacre all Christians before long. The rebels are supposed to number 2,500. On February 22 500 soldiers were sent to intercept them, but could find no indications of the enemy, who are supposed to have gone inland. The Chinese authorities declare that the reports of famine in Central China are exaggerated. Great suffering is admitted to exist in the Northern Provinces. Foreign employes in Corea have not been paid for several months, and the mint has been stopped.

ing Ringwood, N. J., is explained by a special from San Antonio, Tex., in to-day's American. The dispatch says that Mexican papers have been publishing daily dispatches describing Garrett's trip thither, and estimating his wealth up to $100,000,000. Ab hand of half-breed desperadoes read them and planned to stop Garrett's train when it entered Mexican Territory. They were to be heavily armed and were to seize Mr. Garrett and those of his party whom they thought advisable to detain and hold them prisoners in a cave until the relatives in Baltimore should come down with a tremendous sum for rausom. The plan might have succeeded but for the fact that one of the outlaws got drunk and talked about the scheme to a crony in a San Antonio saloon one day last week. The fellow was a Mexican and he talked in a low tone, but a detective overheard his story and communicated it to his superiors. The Garrett party were informed and thought it safer to change their plans and go to Thomasville and Jacksonville, which they did.

A letter received in Baltimore yesterday from one of Mr. Garrett's party states that the trip to Mexico has been abandoned for reasons best known to Mr. Garrett and his friends. The letter further states that Mr. Garrett has been much benefited by his trip and is now in excellent health and spirits. The story from San Antonio has created much excitement in Baltimore business and financial circles, and while not much credence is given to it, it is thought that it may be true. At the Garrett bankinghouse it is said that the change of plans was merely the fancy of a sick man.

MONEY.

New York, March 26, 11 a. m.—There was a moderate volume of business in the stock market this morning, but it was almost entirely confined to the Grangers and Southwesterns, where all the interest in the speculation centered. The pressurer to sell in Atchison, Burlington & Quincy and Bock Island, showed no diminution and except for the animation in Heading and Northwestern and to a smaller deree in Union Pacific and Louisville & Mashville, here was no feature outside of them in the entire list. First prices were as compared with last evening's figures in most cases slightly higher, though urington was up to per cent and Lackwanns was off $\frac{1}{2}$. The last named stock recovered per cent and some others, especially Northwestern. Union Pacific and New England showed an advacing tendency, but the weakness in Burlington, tehison and Rock Island carried the list off and ight losses were generally sustained in the early iding. Burlington lost $\frac{1}{2}$, Rock Island $\frac{1}{2}$ and ichison $\frac{1}{2}$, but late-in the hour a recovery ensued inchison $\frac{1}{2}$ is unprovement followed all over a list and although the fluctuations were insignifed, the market at $1 \text{ o'clock was quiet but firm, it generally at slightly better figures than those of topening figures. Improvement followed all over the properties of the price of renerally at slightly better figures than those of opening.

CATTLE—The market was fairly active and prices a shade higher on desirable grades. Eastern shippers were around and wasted good fat native steers. The comparatively few bunches offered changed hands promptly at prices ranging from $3.3064 per 100 % according to quality. Total offerings were moderate and the quality not of the best, yet by no means very common. Taken all in all a fair market was had and the thirty car loads or more found disposal without difficulty. But it must be remembered that common and thin cow stock remains dull and is hard of disposal at very low prices. Stockers and feeders steers dail and unchanged. Milk cows with calves in abundance dull.

THE WHITE HOUSE HELP. Southern Negroes Excited Over the Dismissal of Colored Domestics. By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch.

RICHMOND, Va., March 26.—The most intense excitement prevails among the negro population here over the announcement that Mrs. Harrison had dismissed all the colored serv-ants at the White House and employed white domestics in their stead. The effect of this announcement is simply appalling. The negro is unable to comprehend the seemingly awful significance of such revolutionary action on the part of the wife of a Republican President. To the negroes it portends some terrible disaster and many of them now believe it is the first blow almed at their civil rights, if not their actual freedom. All over the city the utmost gloom and despondency seems to have settled upon the colored people who discuss among themselves the extraordinary change instituted by the mistress of the White House. If such a thing had been done by Mrs. Cleveland, the wife of a Democratic President, they could have understood and could have explained it satisfactorily themselves as a measure directed against their race on strictly party grounds. Coming, however, as it does before Republican Mr. and Mrs. Harrison are well settled in the White House, it is incomprehensible.

All the negroes approached on the subnegro is unable to comprehend the seem-well settled in the White House, it is incomprehensible.

All the negroes approached on the subject refused to be interviewed. They mutter and grumble and become irritated when asked any questions on the subject. They imagine that the white questioner is simply gloating over what they consider a misiortune and a foul indignity to their race by the first Republican lady in the land. It is hard to say now what will be the outcome of Mrs. Harrison's act. She has set an example which, if foilowed throughout the North and South, may result in changing the whole political situation in the country.

If it went no higher, its action would be unopposed, but if the poor judgment displayed last year by the trust were to be again asserted, the action would be resented more bitterly than ever before.

out of the Eastern handicap, Matt Byrnes, her trainer, is quoted as saying: "Well, it was just this way: She is in the very best of health now, in fact, she was never better in her life; but she is a comparatively small mare, and the task some people would have me ask of her was, in my opinion, entirely too much. In last year's performances she was, of course, properly handicapped, but when you try to reduce a racehorse to a selling plate's level by pliing on weight, you are very likely to break down the horse. Why, she is actually asked to carry hurdle weight. It does not happen more than three or four times in a man's life that he runs across such a mare as Firenzi; in fact he may train horses fifty years without seeing such a one. While it may take a lifetime to get such a horse it will not take him a year to lose her—that is, if he asks impossible things of her. Then, again Firenzi is never quite as good in the spring as she is later on, and perhaps it is just as well to save her, especially as there will be no scarcity of racing; but even if there was not another meeting during the year I would rather retire her to the stud perfectly sound than run the risk of breaking her down. She was promptly declared out of all handicaps simply occause we did not want the public to bet on her in future books when we knew that she would not start." just this way: She is in the very best of health

"Het one of the best fields to be found is right here in Missouri. A few of the Northwestern men came to this State last year, and bought timber lands. Their mills have not fairly gotten to work, but the prospects are so excellent that a number more, principally from Minnesota, have been attracted, and negotiations are now in progress which will in all probability result in the purchase of thousands of acres. I, myself, have just returned from the Southern Ozarks, and have the refusal of a tract several hundred acres in extent. The timber is not large, but of excellent quality, and there is pienty of it. The one question that may involve difficulties is that of transportation but I believe that by some improvements in the roads that this can be overcome. Should this prove to be the case the entire mountain region of Missouri will be transformed, and millions of dollars of foreign capital will flow into the State."

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 26,-The mad-stone was yesterday applied to another of the were bitten two weeks ago. The stone adhered nearly tewlve hours to the ll-year-old girl treated Sunday, and eight hours to the 5-year-old girl yesterday. Some of the virus drawn through the porous stone will be subjected to a scientific examination. Last night two men from Warren County, this State, came here to have the stone applied, each being apprehensive that some of the saliva of a hog got under the skin of their fingers. The hog was bitten by a dog as were several others in the same pen, and so far three have died. The dog has been running wild through the county.
